All Assets Tree View

All Assets View

The "All Assets" view has a special tree view functionality which allows the user to visualize all the assets in a structured way according to their hierarchical level, starting from the highest level to the lowest. This structure is determined by the "is Part Of" (parent) field associated with each asset in the system. (See the section "how to bulk import data" for more information on parent assets).

Locations View

The asset Locations view displays only the location-type assets in a list view.

Note: A location is a place or site where people or other assets are located. A location can be a physical site, such as a building or a warehouse, but it can also be used to delimit workspaces, such as production areas or offices, among others.

Locations can be used to locate both assets and user accounts, thus applying certain viewing restrictions (for example, user accounts that are limited to one location can only view the information contained in hierarchical levels below where they are located).

Equipment View

Equipment can be considered as a set of interconnected components and parts that perform a complete productive function. An typical example would be a pump set consisting of a pump, motor and gearbox (components) and associated parts such as a coupling between the motor and gearbox.

Note: In Fracttal, an equipment can be structured as a hierarchy of components arranged in a parent-child relationship.
